PREFACE.

FOR the numerous misreadings of places and surnames which I make no doubt have crept into the following Calendar, I must apologise to my readers. All I can say is I have done my best, and that I have been unable to obtain any help from those who are better acquainted than I with Suffolk names.

Many mistakes which I have found in the text I have corrected in the Index, but no doubt there are still more than there should be, and I shall be glad of any corrections, and can only deprecate the wrath of Suffolk antiquaries by reminding them that the Calendar has been not only a labour of love, but of very considerable expense to me.

As in the case of the Cambridgeshire Calendar (issued by me in 1891), I believe it would have been easier and cheaper in the long run to have done the Calendaring myself than to employ a Record Agent, who, naturally, was even less acquainted with the Suffolk place-names than myself.*

To those who wish to refer to the original documents at the Record Office I must point out that up to p. 64 the Calendar was printed off before the authorities began to re-file the fines in their proper order, and give them as permanent numbering. Consequently, the old numbers on pp. 1—64 are not now the true references, and the whole of the Fines for the term must be written for and looked through for any document wanted. From p. 64 to the end the reference number is the present one, and that only and the year date need be put on the ticket. CS

Sometimes the file of Suffolk Fines contains Fines belonging to * Mr. A. F. Heintz, who has since compiled a similar Calendar of the 9,473 Fines from Henry VIII. to Elizabeth.

other Counties, e.g., Fincham and Lynn, both in Norfolk, see pp. 67 and 75. Some of these have been corrected, and put back into their proper counties, e.g., Brisworth (p. 70).

It is often most difficult to say what name is meant, Rynell may be Ryvett and so may Revyle be Revyte, again Wolvene may be Wolveve, Lone, Love, and vice versâ. There are also two or three silly errata, probably caused by the re-setting of a piece of "pie" (without letting the Editor see the result), e.g., I certainly do not write or pass in the proof "Churatin" for Chevalier (!) after Wm. de Ufford's name.

Besides the Fines calendared here there are a few other Fines relating to Suffolk to be found among the "Divers Counties'" Fines, i.e., fines referring to land in two or more counties. These I have not calendared, partly because Le Neve has left us a very fair Calendar of them from John to Henry vi. (Public Record Office), and partly because they are now being printed in the "East Anglian."

In so bare a Calendar as this, which is only meant to give enquirers a clue as to what fines exist as to the places or families in which they are interested, there can be little to interest the antiquary proper.

As in my Norfolk Calendar, however, I find evidence that the general idea that land only was passed by a fine is erroneous.

We find here fines relating to a marriage (p. 50), to the freedom of a man (p. 54), to rents due (64 and 89), to services (91), to the custody of the Bishop's woods (144), to customs and services out of part of a manor (p. 159), to land held for a term of 15 years (p. 203), to a life term (p. 283), and to the right to six weirs (p. 247).

The chief interest in the place-name Index, apart from its topographical value, is that it shows there were several places which now have no existence. Whether they have been lost by the inroads of the sea—as Dodenesse or Wrabnesses—or by change of name, I leave to others to say. There are the usual instances of names ending in "feud," changing into field, as Cockfield and Waldingfield; and of "worth" into "ford," as Poslingworth into Poslingford. Frostenham varies into Frostenden, Huntisfield into Huntingford, and Letheringham into Letherington.

In some cases "thorp" is used as an affix to villages which no longer bear it, e.g., Ixworth occurring as Ixworththorp. The dropped "h" is noticeable in 'Edenham and 'Elmingham.

The following are the names of the chief villages now missing, or which I cannot identify satisfactorily:—

Adulveston	Broxstede	Otinton
Akethorp	Chickering (4)	Pasinton (Pedenham)
Allington	Cokeleye	Poslingworth (now Poslingford)
Armyngton	Colesleye
Ashley	Colstun	Sadinfeld
Athelington	Dodenesse	Saxfield
Bagworth	Dunston (? Denston)	Stradenham
Bedinghall	Fakedon	Thorney and T juxta
Belgrave	Gasthorp	Cretyng
Beningham (several)	Githesthorp	Westowe
Benington (1)	Goderichthorp	Wither
Benstede	Guitesthorp	Wrabnesse
Braham	Halstead (? Hawstead)	Waldingfeud (now Waldingfield)
Braunston	Kentwell (4)
Braunsite	Kesgrave (? Kengrave)
Brisworth	Maneton

Of course it may be that some of them may be in adjacent Counties, and have been included in the "Suffolk Fines," through the mistake or laziness of a clerk.

The corruption of some place-names are curious, Glemesford and Poslingford were once Glemforth and Poslyngforth; Hacheston, Hachestorp; Kirkton, Kirksted: Rougham, Roghaugh; in each case the Scandinavian affix having been changed into a Saxon one. Frostenham varies into Frostenden, and Kersete is softened into Kersey, Ringsale to Ringsale.

Dodenessee and Wrabnesse, two other Danish place-names, seem now to have disappeared—probably into the sea, as "ness" is a point—and there are many other villages not now to be found, such as Gasthorp and Godrechesthorp, the wash of the sea having probably cleared them away.

The variation from Westelyngton to Westleton, and the disappearance of Allington, Armyngton, Athelington, Benington, and Otintion shows that the mysterious termination "ington" was more common once than now. For some notes as to its geographical distribution I may refer to the map in my "Popular History of Norfolk."

It is curious to note how some towns are referred to more oftener than others—Lowestoft has ten references and Beccles 56, but Bungay has only 27. The number of villages distinguished by their having been burned is curious, e.g., Brend Bradfeld, Brent Eleigh, and Brent Wenham.

The personal names, apart from names derived from localities from the Norman and French names, and from the nicknames mentioned hereafter are very interesting.

The following, whether Scandinavian or Saxon, are worthy of note. Many are still with us, though often corrupted. In all there are 303, as against 322 in Norfolk (see Introduction to "Norfolk Fines," p. 5), and vastly more than in Beds. (91), Berks (90), Bucks (105), and Cambridge (128).

What is very strange is that of these 303 names only nine are to be found in "Cambridge Fines," viz., Hardwin, Hereward, Safrey, and Sefrey, Seman, Swayn, Syward, Tebaud, Torald, and Walkelin.

This is even fewer than the number of names common to Cambridge and Norfolk (28), as I pointed out while writing on the "Cambridge Fines" this would seem to point to a radical difference in race between the inhabitants of Cambridge and Norfolk.

Of the 303 Suffolk names I find only 25 in Norfolk, which again is very extraordinary. Of course, my selection of strange and unusual names has been an arbitrary one, but I doubt if the average would be much different if the lists were more minutely compiled.

Only five, viz., Hardwin, Saffrey, Seman, Torald, and Walkelin, are common to the three counties.

Of what light is thrown on history by these fines I must let others decide; but I may point out there are several entries relating to the Suffolk connections of Chaucer, the Staces and Westhales, while the derivation of Wolsey's surname from Wulcy seems abundantly clear. The early forms of our well-known surnames of Burt (Buhurt), Cabbell (Kebbell), Lacon (Lagon), Suckling (Sucl yng), and Upcher (Upchare), are interesting. Quilter is of course Le Quylter.

I think we can trace some comparatively recent Scandinavian settlement in such names as Catessone (p. 234), Richardessone (p. 234), Godessone (p. 276), and Thomasson (p. 283). These double ss's do not occur in any part of the early fines.

Of Jewish names I have only noted Isaak, Jacob, Jedyben, Jop, Joop, Joos, and Joseph.

The nicknames disclosed are many and various, and may be roughly sub-divided thus :—

	Alcock

In roughly classifying, however, the above nicknames, I would warn my readers that, in my opinion, very few of them were given their bearers in the first instance. A man called Angas very probably made a wry face over a toothache, and then local wit told him his name should be "Anguish" in future, and so it was. Godegrim similar became Goodgroom, Seman, Seaman, Le Arbalister, Le Aleblaster, and I make no doubt that Mr. Fulsnap (p. 311) was at some time or another punned into Fullsnipe, Alswift corrupted from Alswayth, and Brandywine from Brunnewyne, Foulwater again was probably a place-name. So did Ingepenne became Ink-pen, and Asketel Ashkettle. Nor were Norman names sacred, for Amoundevale became Man-devil.

The names beginning with "Le" are interesting, as showing many lost trades, etc. They are as follows:—

Le Aldeman	Brasur	Couper
Aleblaster	Breustere	Cunte
Ancres	Buk	Curnur
Armurer
	Calicer	Deen
Bailiff	Cartere
Barbour	Chaluner	Especer

Of course the above list does not represent all the men of Norman or French blood whose names are on the fines, for many a Norman sank his patronymic and assumed a place name, and called himself de Rendlesham, or de . . . . any place he owned.

It seems to me it will be perfectly feasible, when all the Fines of England are calendared, to compile almost a perfect list of all the Norman and French who at one time or another settled in England, and that when this is done, it will be found that the number was far greater than is usually supposed.

It will then also be found possible to see, by marking the occurrence of the names derived from Norman places on a map of Normandy, whether the inhabitants of certain tracts of land did not come over to the exclusion of those from other tracts.
